LOCATION:

Lauder is nestled amidst the rolling hills of the Scottish Borders and is a picturesque market town that perfectly blends rural charm with modern convenience. Known for its historic high street, traditional stone architecture and welcoming community, the town offers a peaceful lifestyle whilst remaining well-connected to wider amenities. Lauder boasts a range of local facilities including a well-stocked Co-op, independent shops, cosy cafes, traditional pubs and a highly regarded primary school. Outdoor enthusiasts will appreciate the scenic countryside walks, cycling routes, and nearby sporting facilities, with golf, fishing and equestrian pursuits all within easy reach. Despite its tranquil setting, Lauder offers excellent transport links. The A68 provides direct access to Edinburgh, just 25 miles to the north, making it an attractive option for commuters. For rail connections, the Borders Railway at Stow or Galashiels links to Edinburgh Waverley in under an hour. The nearby towns of Melrose, Galashiels, and Kelso provide a wider selection of shopping, leisure, and healthcare services. With its combination of historic charm, natural beauty, and convenient proximity to Edinburgh and the wider Borders, Lauder offers an idyllic lifestyle for families, professionals, and those seeking a peaceful retreat without compromising on accessibility.

DESCRIPTION:

A charming picture-perfect cottage with a contemporary twist. Step inside this characterful cottage and prepare to be surprised. This beautifully renovated home effortlessly blends traditional charm with modern elegance. The space opens up into a thoughtfully designed interior, where every detail has been carefully considered. The heart of the home is a stylish dining kitchen, where the layout and colour scheme strike a perfect balance between practicality and flair. The modern shower room maximises space without compromising on style, while the living room offers a cosy yet sophisticated retreat. Upstairs, you will find two spacious double bedrooms and additional storage, making this a highly functional home despite its quaint exterior. The property is well-maintained and also benefits from gas central heating and double glazing. Whether you're a first-time buyer or seeking a tranquil weekend escape, this cottage offers the perfect blend of comfort, charm and contemporary design.
